PHILIPPINE AGENT IN JAPAN

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

WILL the historic American union of 48 states one day pass away, to be merged into a single federal state having sectional "departments"? Some observers think this very thing will occur—and elsewhere on this page you will find the "new America" as they picture it.

Instead of 48 states there would be nine departments—grouping of states according to geography, commerce and common tradition. The departments might be as follow:

1. Department of the Pacific.
2. Department of the Rockies.
3. Department of the Southwest.
4. Department of the Prairies.
5. Department of the Mississippi (including Arkansas).
6. Department of the South Atlantic.
7. Department of the Great Lakes.
8. Department of the Middle Atlantic.
9. Department of New England.

The trend toward centralization of American authority in Washington is undisputed. It has been going on for a long time.

But for the same reason, I have an idea that no one in this generation will live to see the actual fact of a federal state accomplished.

It may come in the far-distant years—but for the present the centralization trend may produce a somewhat different effect.

X X X

Elimination of state boundaries, even under a sectional re-grouping plan such as the "department" scheme, means the elimination of local authority, and the elimination of responsibility of elected officials to local voters.

Before so radical a step is taken—or even becomes probable—something else will happen; and I think that "something else" is this:

There will be a vast shakeup in the taxation machinery, with the federal government co-ordinating the taxation of all the states where such things as schools and roads are concerned.

Not only will the state and federal programs be co-ordinated, but I suspect that the federal government will take over the business of collecting such taxes.

It might work this way:

States would be prohibited from voting gasoline, tobacco and sales taxes. But the federal congress would enact a blanket national tax on each of these items, would collect such taxes, keeping a record of the collections from the respective state areas, and then turning back to each state government its pro-rata share.

X X X

It seems to me that most of the trouble faced by the nation today, in the argument between the states and the federal government, can be resolved into two factors: (1) control of crime, and (2) proper adjustment of tax collection machinery in a transition period when our taxes are being slowly but steadily switched away from the land and put upon commerce.

Neither of these factors requires a single federal state.

All that they require is an operating agreement between the states and the Washington government.

I think we are very close to seeing that much accomplished.

Beyond that, nothing is likely to happen in this generation.

And we will be just as well off.

Arkansas Farmers Rally to Aid of Triple-A Program

1,000 Gather at Little Rock to Draft Message to Congress

ON TO WASHINGTON

Pilgrimage to Capital City to Be Made May 14—Ask Plan Continuance

LITTLE ROCK.—A resolution was adopted at a statwide meeting by approximately 1,000 farmers here asking Arkansas's senators and representatives to support the Agricultural Adjustment Act as it now exists "without amendment," and to support a pending resolution to extend the Bankhead compulsory cotton control law.

The resolution also asked that an annual fall referendum on continuance of the Bankhead act be provided for and that compulsory control be continued so long as a majority of cotton farmers favor it.

The resolution was drafted by a committee composed of C. B. Gregg, Jonesboro, chairman; E. E. Mitchell, Morrilton; A. F. Henry, Jacksonville; Emmett Mitchell, Garland City and E. C. Cox, Ashley county planter.

It will be delivered to the Arkansas delegation in Congress May 14, when several hundred Arkansas cotton farmers will join delegations from other Southern states in a cotton pilgrimage to Washington to "counteract vicious propaganda against the AAA."

County cotton committee chairmen were designated to head their county delegations and will be rquired to list the personnel of their delegations before next Friday.

To Direct Pilgrimage

Arrangements for the pilgrimage are in charge of a committee composed of Harold A. Young, chairman of the Pulaski County Planters Club and member of the state Cotton Allotment Board; C. M. Howell, Russellville; E. G. Anderson, Texarkana; J. O. E. Beck, Crittenden county, and former Representative Joe Hardin, Lincoln county.

Special trains carrying the greater part of the Arkansas delegation will leave Sunday night, May 12, and will arrive in Washington Tuesday morning, May 14. All delegations are scheduled to join in a mass demonstration during the day, and each delegation will meet with the members of Congress from its state Tuesday night.

A part of the delegation is expected to make the trip by automobile but the majority will go by train, Mr. Young said. Pullman cars will be used as Washington headquarters and for the convenience of the delegates.

Two Voice Complaints

Opposition to the pilgrimage and continuation of the AAA was voiced by a Pulaski county farmer who complained he raised only one bale of cotton and was allowed to exempt only 320 pounds under the Bankhead act. Henry Moore Jr., of Texarkana attacked the program as working a hardship on farmers and ginners. Otis Page, Pulaski county farm superintendent, responded that Mr. Moore was interested in gins and oil mills and represented milling interests.

Brief talks were made by nearly a score of farmers who quickly took advantage of Chairman Young's action in throwing the meeting "wide open" to give "everybody a chance to say what they want to say for or against the program."

Snow Falls Upon 'Dust Bowl' Area

End of Dust Storms Foreseen in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(AP)—Snow fell Friday night on four sectors of the five-state dust belt. Jubilant farmers predicted an end to the silt storms which have caused scores of persons to die, killed livestock and inflicted millions of dollars in crop damages.

The snow, heavy in places, brought the first moisture of consequence in months to Southeastern Colorado, Eastern New Mexico, Northwestern Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle. Only Western Kansas in the 18,000,000-acre "dust bowl" failed to report relief.

"Every one is happy," said William E. Baker, Cimarron county, (Okla.) agent as snow measuring nearly two inches fell at Boise City. It is in an area where the dust storms have blown so incessantly that more than 100 families moved out.

A fall at Dalhart, Texas, occurred as Tex Thornton, Amarillo oil well "shooter," was preparing to send explosives-laden balloons aloft to bombard rain clouds. The snow fell over a wide area of the Texas Panhandle.

In contrast with Thursday's light sprinkle of rain in dust-harassed Baca county, Col., the snow there was general and so absorbed interest that failure of the Springfield, Col., light plant, passed almost unnoticed.

Pagan Japan to Be Recognized by the Catholic Holy See

Papal Nuncio to Be Set Up in Tokyo for First Time in History

TO REVIVE RUSSIA

French Loan Will Improve Railroads—Carrying Troops Westward

VATICAN CITY, Rome, Italy—(AP)—For the first time in history the Holy See and Japan are to enter into diplomatic relations, it was reported by prelates Saturday.

They said the establishment of a nuncio in Tokyo to replace the present apostolic delegate, and the establishment of a Japanese embassy or legation in the Holy see, is imminent.

High Vatican circles said this understanding followed lengthy negotiations between them, and a formal announcement concerning the foundation of mutual diplomatic relations will be forthcoming "in due time."

French Money to Russia

PARIS, France—(AP)—France and Russia Friday made public provisions of their new mutual assistance treaty guaranteeing each the aid of the other's army in event of "unprovoked aggression on the part of any European state."

It was disclosed that France would help the Soviet build railways and strategic roads along her Western frontier to facilitate movement of the Red army.

A conference between the general army staffs of the two nations will be held soon to determine just how quickly Russia could place an army on the Western front in case of war.

The treaty, signed Thursday and submitted to other governments before its publication Friday pledges each nation the other's aid—on the basis of article 15 of the League of Nations covenant—for the next five years. It renews automatically unless one of the powers denounces it, giving a year's notice.

Door Open for Germany

France and Russia promised to help one another if the council "for whatever reason" fails to act, the two signatories also agreeing to act jointly to hasten decision by the council.

The pact was left open for Germany in event she should decide to enter an Eastern European security system, stipulating that provisions should "come into play only within the limits contemplated in the tripartite agreement (among Russia, France and Germany) previously projected."

To bring Russia's railways up to date would cost about 3,500,000,000 francs (approximately $367,500,000), it was said, and France was expected to provide the greater part of this. French engineers will draw plans for the new roads and railways and France will sell the Soviet much of the products.

Financing would be through importation of Russian oils and metals, groundwork for which was laid in the Franco-Russian trade treaty in effect for the last two years. An official loan to Russia will not be made, but regular commercial exchanges will handle the financing.

Reports here said the French and Russian general staffs, alarmed at Germany's rapid rearmament, would work out defense plans within the next few months.

Bremer Suspect Held at Orleans

Harry Sawyer Alias "Sea Lion" to Be Returned to Minnesota

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—Harry Sawyer alias "the Sea Lion," indicted in St. Paul, Minn., in conection with the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, was arrested by Department of Justice agents on the Mississippi coast and boraught here Saturday for removal to Minnesota.

Sawyer was previously held in Minnesota, but was released when authorities reported he had cleared himself. Subsequently he was indicted with a score of others. Ten of the accused are now in custody.

Bulletins

CINCINNATI, Ohio—(AP)—Counsel for the striking Chevrolet and Fisher companies' workers said Saturday that William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is considering calling a general strike in the automobile industry unless the present labor disputes with General Motors are quickly settled.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—William Green denied Saturday he told workers' attorneys at Cincinnati he would call a strike if the American Federation of Labor units in the automobile industry unless a speedy settlement of the Chevrolet walkout was obtained.

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Struck by falling timber at a railroad bridge near McKey, Okla., Thursday, Tilman Piles, 29, London, Ark.; died in a hospital here Saturday. His body was sent to Russellville.

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Louisiana State Representative Joseph Fisher, political follower of Huey P. Long, Saturday entered the federal penitentiary for 18 months for violation of the federal income tax laws.

HIWASSE, Ark.—(AP)—After isolating the town for several hours by cutting telephone wires, six bandits made a fruitless attempt Saturday to burn the vault door of the Bank of Hiwasse. Citizens counted the men as they left the band and fled.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—A federal court jury Saturday was still deliberating without a verdict in the case of A. U. McGill, former wealthy Stuttgart (Ark.) rice mill operator, charged with mail fraud.

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson telegraphed here Saturday that a PWA order had been issued for the release of the third allotment of $144,000 for construction of the Benton hospital, and that work would be resumed probably Monday.

4 Kansans Killed in Triple Crash

Mullinville Bank President One of Victims at Falfurrias, Texas

FALFURRIAS, Texas.—(AP)—Four prominent Kansans were killed and two other men probably fatally hurt in an accident near here Saturday involving two automobiles and a freight truck.

The dead are:

J. A. SHERAR, president Mullinville (Kan.) State bank.

CHARLES CANNER, R. F. BURNETT, Mullinville, Kan.

INMAN SNEED, Haviland, Kan.

Those probably fatally hurt were: C. C. Felts, Houston, truck driver, and his companion, O. A. Savage.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—The ammunition of the munitions industry includes lobbying, bulldozing, bribery, fake war scares, collusion, and political wire-pulling in high places.

Annual peacetime profits of the "war-supplies racket" run somewhere between $4,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 and American participants have been out to get their share.

Large peacetime profits rise to fantastic rates in war, when producers of essential materials, in common with makers of guns, ships, and explosives, howl the government up for all they can get.

That's the background built by the Nye investigating committee for its proposed wartime limitation of in-

Bandit Trio Take Hope Car and Get Away Over Bridge

Ray Allen's Machine Seized by Men Believed to Be Desperadoes

"RUN" FULTON GATE

Lights Cut Off and Thieves Dash Through Bridge Toward Texarkana

Clarence and Freddie Busche, Missouri brothers, wanted for the dance hall slaying of two men and the wounding of two others near Sheridan Thursday night are believed to have abandoned a car here Friday night, stolen a second automobile, and escaped toward Texarkana.

The abandoned car, a Ford V-8 sedan bearing Texas license, was found a mile north of Hope Saturday morning on the Blevins road. The gas tank was empty. A tire was flat. Bloodstains were found on the rear seat, and a bullet hole was discovered in a front fender.

Officers here believe the Busche brothers, accompanied by a third man, abandoned the car, walked into Hope and stole a Ford V-8 parked near Saenger theater. The second car was the property of Ray Allen, motion picture projectionist at the Saenger theater.

A car fitting the description of Allen's "ran" the Fulton toll bridge en route toward Texarkana about 9 p. m. Friday.

Car "Runs" Toll-Gate

Officers said the automobile lights were cut off as the car approached the bridge, the car then picked up momentum and sped past L. E. Quinn, toll keeper.

The Busche brothers, accompanied by a third man, are believed to be members of a quartet that encountered officers 10 miles south of Malvern Friday afternoon. One of the quartet was captured and jailed at Malvern. He gave his name as J. B. Foster, 17, of Dallas.

The three other men, found asleep with pistols and a shotgun in their car, were captured—but escaped as they were being taken to jail at Malvern.

Malvern officers identified two of the trio who escaped as the Busche brothers, according to information received here.

The automobile that was found here Saturday morning matched the description of the one in which officers encountered near Malvern. The license numbers were compared and tallied. Other descriptions of the car found near Hope and the one in which the trio escaped near Malvern fitted perfectly.

Sought in Texarkana

TEXARKANA.—(AP)—Miller county authorities Saturday sought three men in light colored sedan similar to a car stolen at Hope Friday night which ran through Fulton toll bridge without stopping. The trio is believed to be either the Fort Smith bank robbers, Sheridan killers, or Sam Day and a companion who escaped from Tucker farm a few days ago.

Talkative Juror Gets Into Trouble

N. Y. Supreme Court Brands Story False, and Suggests Prosecution

NEW YORK—(AP)—Bronx officials issued denials Friday when confronted by a statement, attributed to a grand juror, that Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon had testified secretly in 1932 that he never would be able to identify the "John" of the Lindbergh ransom negotiations.

The supreme court took the unusual step of contradicting the statement by releasing portions of the transcript containing Dr. Condon's testimony before the May, 1932, grand jury.

Justice John E. McGeehan, who made public the excerpts, then suggested that the current grand jury take up the matter.

Justice John E. McKeehan, who made public the excerpts, then suggested that the current grand jury take up the matter.

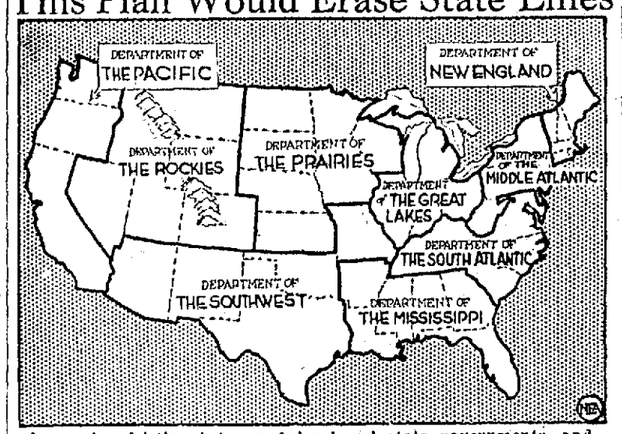

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley disclosed he had subpoenaed Harry L. Whaley, he 1932 juror to whom was credited the statement that Dr. Condon reversed himself in the Bruno Richard Hauptmann trial, but that Whaley had not appeared. Foley said Whaley, whose purported statement also has aroused the interest of Hauptmann's lawyers, was reported by relatives to have left town several days ago.

Foley declined to say whether he contemplated taking any action against Whaley, a retired monument builder. Disclosure of Grand Jury proceedings constitutes a misdemeanor.

This Plan Would Erase State Lines

Increasing friction between federal and state governments, and constitutional limitations which hold back united national action because of states' rights, have caused students to ponder plans to eliminate state governments entirely. They would elect Congress from regions or departments. Here is one of the suggested groupings. Representatives would be elected from districts as at present, but senators would be chosen at large, an equal number from each department. Many proposals along the lines of the above suggestion are being made by students of government.

50-Day Revival at First Methodist

Period From Easter to Pentecost to Be Celebrated Here

In line with a suggestion made by the Commission on Evangelism of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Hope's First Methidist church will celebrate the 50 days from Easter to Pentecost as a period of revival effort, Pentecost, which occurs 50 days after Easter, is the birthday of the church. It was on this day that the Holy Spirit came into the hearts of 120 waiting disciples in the Upper Room at Jerusalem.

The pastor of First Methodist church the Rev. Fred R. Harrison, announces the following program to be carried on during this Pentecost period in the church here, to start Sunday:

To have 120 Methodists present at each mid-week prayer service during the month of May. There were 120 disciples in the Upper Room on the day of Pentecost. The Book of Acts will be studied at these Wednesday night meetings. Each person is asked to read the first seven chapters for next Wednesday night.

A revival meeting will begin on May 30, the day that Christ ascended, and the day the disciples went into the Upper Room. This revival will be held on the church lawn if the weather permits, and will extend through Pentecost Sunday, June 9.

Another goal is to have every Methodist living in Hope present for the Pentecost Services, June 9. A class of members will be received at that time also.

The pastor will preach sermons during this period based upon texts found in the Book of Acts, and several messages will deal with the nature and meaning of the Holy Spirit. The subject Sunday night is, "The Significance of the Ascension."

The co-operation of the mefbership is solicited to make this time from Easter to Pentecost a season when the revival fires of real religion will burn again in the hearts if Christians.

City to Gather Up Tin Cans Monday

Householders Must Sack Up Cans and Place Them at Street Curb

The official opening of Hope's municipal campaign against mosquitoes was announced Saturday by Mayor Albert Graves in an appeal to householders to gather up all tin cans in their backyards and sack them up on the street curb for collection early Monday morning.

The city will haul off the cans Monday free of charge.

Mosquito-breeding usually occurs within a few yards of the house whose occupants complain of them, and the greatest single breeding place in cities is usually tin cans, littering up a yard. Cans should be gathered up regularly, and no can should be left exposed to rainfall without first being punched through the bottom to prevent water gathering and affording a breeding place for mosquitoes.

Every boy who has attained the age of 12 or more will discover that Dad and Mother will be a lot easier to get along with this summer if he will keep the lawn mowed and free from rubbish; will do his best to raise a prize garden and flower bed and be generally useful around the house. He will discover that he will have plenty of spending money, plenty of time off for fishing and swimming. And who knows—it might be so arranged that he can go on that camping trip, where he can cook his own meals over an open campfire?

Baptist Training Course Will Open

Three Classes to Begin at 7 p. m. Monday—Running Five Days

The Baptist Training Union of the First Baptist church will hold a five-day study course at the church beginning Monday night at 7 o'clock. There will be three classes, as follow:

The New Intermediate Manual—to be taught by the Rev. F. Clyde Hankins, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church of Ennis, Texas.

The New Senior B. Y. P. U. Manual for seniors and adults—to be taught by the Rev. E. H. Westmoreland, pastor of the First Baptist church of Leland, Miss.

Studying for Service for the Junior B. Y. P. U.—to be taught by Mrs. W. Clyde Hankins of Ennis, Texas.

Mr. Hankins and Mr. Westmoreland are graduates of Ouachita college, and of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisvile, Ky. Mrs. Hankins is a graduate of Bethel college in Kentucky, and was a teacher in Oklahoma for several years.

The schedule will be divided into three periods:

7:00 to 7:45 First class period.

7:45 to 8:15 Assembly and address by Mr. Westmoreland or Mr. Hankins.

8:15 to 9:00 Second class period.

The school will be open to any person who cares to attend, and the general public is invited to be present to hear the addresses each evening.

McCaskill Turns Out for Kiwanis

500 on Hand When Good Tourists Appear Friday Night

The fifth good will trip of the Hope Kiwanis club was taken to McCaskill Friday night, where they were greeted by approximately 500 persons in the school house.

John P. Cox delivered the good will address, and Charles Dana Gibson explained the prize essay contest. An unusual amount of interest was shown in the essay contest because Reese Hamilton, a McCaskill boy, won the $50 prize last year.

A musical program was presented by Riley Huddleston and his band.

A short meeting was held at Hotel Barlow before the club members drove to McCaskill.

Gibson in Denial of Arson Charge

Effort to Revoke Federal Probation Order Apparently Fails

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark.—Returning here Friday night after having been released on $10,000 bond at Pocahontas, John K. Gibson, planter of Lauratown and Hoxie, issued a statement declaring that he was absolutely innocent of any connection with the burning of the Hotel Randolph at Pocahontas last Sunday.

Gibson said that the statement that he had a financial interest in the Lawrence Hotel here was untrue. He said that it is true that his daughter married the son of H. E. Smith, manager of the Lawrence hotel.

He also called attention to the fact that the Boaz Hotel, at Hoxie, which burned several years ago was owned by John S. Gibson and not by him. He

Rebel Chief Asks Aid; But Japanese to Keep Hands Off

Sakdalista Leader Revealed as in Tokyo Since Late Last Year

NO CASH OR ARMS

Japs Deny Assistance as Man Is Killed in French Fighting

MANILA, P. I.—(AP)—A roaming band of Sakdalistas Saturday killed a truck driver and wounded two laborers near the Ipo gold mine in Bulacan province—indicating that the rebellion which already has claimed 60 lives is still simmering.

Constabulary left Manila to investigate a report that several hundred extremists are entrenched in a cave in the same province.

At Tokyo, Japan, a man who described himself as Benigno Ramos, president of the Philippines Sakdalista party, said he had been there since late in 1934 "to inform the Japanese as to the real conditions in the Philippines and gain moral support."

Some Tokyo officials denied that money or arms had been given Ramos, saying that the Japanese would not meddle in the Philippines.

Cargile Is Lone Hope Competitor

Hope Boy Entered in Two Events at State Track Meet Saturday

Nolan (Tootsie) Cargile, only Hope entry in the state high school track and field meet at Conway, will enter two events in the finals to be run Saturday.

Cargile will compete for honors in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles.

In the preliminaries Friday, Cargile came out first in both events, running the high hurdles in 16.8 seconds, and the 220-yard low hurdles in 27.4 seconds.

A total of 162 athletes from 48 Arkansas High Schools entered the preliminaries and from this number of schools 33 will have entries in the finals Saturday.

Little Rock, with one of its strongest teams in several years, is a heavy favorite to win the meet. Thirty-one Little Rock athletes qualified for the finals.

C. A. Overstreet, president of the Magnolia A. & M. college delivered the principal address to 19 members of the Mineral Springs high school senior class at commencement exercises held Wednesday night.

The Rev. Robert E. Naylor pastor of the Nashville First Baptist church, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates last Sunday.

Members of the graduating class are Aline Bell, valedictorian, Banch Sanders, salutatorian, Bessie Webb, Bessie Lay, Zetta Wiles, Ena May Wiles, Dorothy Jones, Gibson Wright, Coy Dyer, Floyd Webb, Hurl Ward, Herman Hill, Mammie Jarrett, Lusille Cassleman, Lucille Hawthorne, Inez Funderburg, Charline Walker, Denzil Holcombe, and Gladys Young.

Julia E. Betts, 78, Dies, Norman, Ark.

Funeral Is to Be Held Sunday at H. B. Barr Home in Hope

News was received here Saturday of the death of Miss Julia E. Betts, 78, who died at the home of her nephew, Dr. John T. Barr, at Norman, Ark. Her body will be returned here.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the home of H. B. Barr, 312 North Hervey, with burial in Rose Hill cemetery.

Miss Betts was born near Spring Hill, this county. She spent a greater part of her life here. She left Hope about four years ago.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. John T. Barr, Sr., of Norman, Ark., and a brother, A. L. Betts of Hope. A number of nephews and nieces also survive.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Chew Your Food Well, But Not Too Much

The extent to which you chew your food depends on the food itself, the amount of saliva you put out, the nature of the food, and your own habits in swallowing. Some people get used to swallowing large lumps and others must have their food finely macerated.

Years ago a man named Horace Fletcher started a fad which he claimed would bring good health through chewing. The fad was known as Fletcherization. Fletcher believed that all food should be chewed until of liquid consistency.

There are only two periods in your life when you should have liquid food—first childhood and second childhood. Between these periods you will do better with a certain amount of solid material, if for no other reason than to give exercise to the muscles of the stomach and the intestines.

The power of the human jaw is astounding. Some people can crack nuts with their teeth, and some are able to bite through very hard substances. This also depends on the development of the muscles of the jaws.

Ordinarily you should chew your food until at least the largest masses have been broken up and the fibers torn apart. Fibers in meat are a type of material which does not digest easily.

The more such food is macerated or broken up, the more likely is digestion of the food to be good after it reaches the stomach.

When the food reaches the stomach, it is churned around, mixed with the gastric juices and the hydrochloric acid of the stomach, and then properly forwarded into the bowel.

The saliva, with which the food is mixed in the mouth, goes along with the food to the stomach. It helps not only to moisten the food, but to wet the tongue and the esophagus, which is the tube along which the food passes from throat to stomach.

Before the food reaches the stomach, the saliva starts its starch-digesting action on it. That is its chief ferment.

No other action upon the food takes place in the mouth, but this first action, in which the breaking up of the food's starch is begun, is one of the most important functions relating to proper digestion.

A BOOK A DAY

Says Nation Needs Cause to Follow—Sherwood Anderson Writes of "Puzzled America"

Our great need today, says Sherwood Anderson, is something that we can believe in as a nation; some cause, some way of life, some theory of politics and economics, perhaps, to which we can give ourselves wholeheartedly and by which we can fuse all our great energies to make American life more rich and abundant.

Mr. Anderson sets forth this point of view in "Puzzled America," a book written as the result of much roaming about the nation during the years of depression and recovery.

He finds people, as his title suggests, not despairing, or rebellious, or looking toward violent change, but—just honestly puzzled.

He tells of talking with farmers in the wheat belt, of moseying through towns and cities of the southland, of mingling with minors and factory hands and business men in east and middlewest, and everywhere he discovers an increasing awareness that America's stupendous resources are not being used to the best advantabe.

There is unemployment in a land where an overwhelming amount of work needs to be done, hunger in a land of unparalleled productivity—small wonder that it has us puzzled.

And if Mr. Anderson himself shares this bewilderment, so that his book does not offer us the rallying point for which we are hunting, he at least sees things with an understanding eye and reports them in language that it is a delight to read. His "Puzzled America" is fine stuff.

Published by Scribner's, it sells for $2.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Is Baby in Capital Shape? Take Stock of Health Now.

Is baby getting a good start in life? Is his (or her) physical equipment developing as it should? These are critical problems parents face—and it is to help solve them that Child Health Week is observed. Here is the first of a series of articles Olive Roberts Barton summarizes for Hope Star, pertinent matters stressed in the week's activities.

It seems to me that Child Health Week is a good time to take stock of the baby's assets, or laibilities. To do this the mother will have to know what par is, otherwise she will not be able to make comparisons.

The following is the standard suggested by the Children's Bureau at Washington. Notes are my own.

The normal healthy baby has:

A good appetite.

Absence of vomiting or regurgitation. (Regurgitation or spitting-up does happen sometimes with healthy babies who are nursing. It is not always a sign of sickness.)

A steady gain in weight. (Very important and an excellent guide. Weigh the baby regularly.)

Clear skin.

Should Cry Little

Bright, wide-open eyes.

Alert springy muscles which respond healthily to any stimulus.

A contented expression.

Very little crying. (All babies, especially young ones, need to cry some, and will.)

Quiet and unbroken sleep with eyes and mouth closed.

A constant growth in stature and intelligence. (Sometimes the former is slow. Racial and family characteristics are to be considered.)

The soft spot at back of head closes at about 6 weeks. The one at the front and top at about 1½ to 2 years.

Hears at 4 Months

Baby begins to recognize objects at 6 to 8 weeks. Focuses on objects at 3 months.

Hearing, knowing where sounds come from, develops at about 2 months of age.

Can hold up his head when body is supported at the age of 4 months.

Laughs aloud at 3 to 5 months.

Reaches for toys at 5th to 7th month.

Can sit erect usually at 8 months and may even creep. (Very few children walk so early, but some do.)

Can usually walk with help at a year or thereabouts. (Some babies are more deliberate.)

Walks alone by the 15th month. (Sometimes later.)

Never push the development of a normal healthy baby, or any other. If the mother suspects trouble or undue slowness in development she would best talk to the doctor or take the baby for a thorough examination.

Not All Are Prodigies

There is no use in being alarmed as many young mothers are when their babies do not prove prodigies, or even keep up with the neighbor's offspring, but it is always reassuring to have the doctor's word on it anyway.

Regularity of regimen, cleanliness and comfort help to keep babies well. All babies should be generally fed and directed by professional advice.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Hair Can Be Well Cared for in Home.

Providing she has a few basic preparations and a carefully planned routine, the woman who always shampoos and cares for her hair at home can have as healthy a scalp as anyone who goes to a professional for treatments. As a matter of fact, whatwith the opportunity for drying her hair in the open air and sunshine, there's no reason why she should envy others who can spend several dollars a week on their hair.

Remember, of course, that the type of shampoo you use is most important. Never rub a cake of soap directly on your hair. If you don't have commercially prepared soapy liquid, make one yourself.

Simply shave a cake of bland soap into a glass jar of lukewarm water and let it stand until the soap is dissolved. When you are ready to wash your hair, put a little of the thick soap jelly in a cup and dilute it with warm water.

In addition to whatever tonic you use to correct a special scalp condition, get a stimulating tonic to massage into your scalp while you are drying your hair. There are many good ones on the market today and, without making hair sticky or hard to manage, they tend to alleviate dandruff and brighten up hair that looks slightly dingy.

One excellent tonic of this type—made by a reliable manufacturer and packed in a box with a bottle of nice olive oil shampoo—is to be used nightly if you like, but certainly just before and directly after the weekly shampoo. Part your hair in sections and, using a small cotton pad, rub the tonic around the roots. Massage it in with fingertips.

NRA Is Submitted to Supreme Court

Poultry Code Becomes Test Case of Industrial Recovery Act

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The supreme test of NRA's constitutionality rested Friday night with the supreme court, while, through other channels, the administration fought to prolong the Blue Eagle's life.

The conclusion of arguments before the high court—marked by sharp questions from the bench—coincided with the building by Roosevelt forces of a backfire against the senate move to shorten NRA's life and clip its wings.

A crowd took up even standing room in the supreme court chamber listened, intent, as the Recovery Act was defended by its chief administrator, Donald R. Richberg, and Solicitor General Stanley Reed, and as vigorously assailed by Attorneys Frederick H. Wood and Joseph Heller.

The justices, who took under advisement the A. L. A. Schechter poultry case from New York, labeled as probly the greatest test of New Deal policies since the gold case decisions, themselves showed intense interest with freqent questions.

Richberg, stressing what he termed the "purely voluntary nature" of the codes, crossed swords with Wood, the lawyer who helped the government win the gold cases.

Wood contended an emergency did not permit congress to step beyond the constitutional bounds implied in the doctrine of "enumerated powers."

Congress had the authority, and used it, he said, in banking, relief and other legislation, but he insisted that the government's theory in NRA "is destructive or our dual form of government, and subversive of our political, economic and social institutions as they have grown up under the constitution as hitherto understood."

Richberg replied that congress had merely provided for voluntary co-operation of government with industry "to check the progressive destruction of an economic system."

He declared that private efforts had failed, and that until the downward spiral of depression was halted, "grave domestic disorders and political upheaval" were inevitable.

Richberg insisted that the government, in addition to its right to "regulate" interstate commerce, had the authorit to "promote and protect" commerce.

The New Deal

dividual incomes to $10,000 and corporation profits to 3 per cent and for its forthcoming plan to control the munitions business in normal years.

A dogged, determined committee, steered by the brillant chief investigator, Stephen Raushenbush, has plowed up 4000 pages of testimony and exhibits which rank the investigation even ahead of Teapot Dome.

Wield Vast Power

Real headquarters of the War Department is at the duPont plant in Wilmington, and the navy's is in whichever hotel room officials of the "Big Three" shipbuilding companies happen to hang their hats—some senators have been led to suggest.

The navy has cost $7,000,000,000 since 1920. Whether the nation got its money's worth, nobody knows. The navy has no way of learning production costs from the private companies which lobbied naval building programs through Congress.

Nearly all the navy's ships are built by the "Big Three"—the New York, Newport News, and Bethlehem companies.

Theoretically, they bid competitively—as the law requires—on each cruiser, destroyer, or other warship authorized by Congress.

But, actually, evidence indicated intimite relationship among the "Big Three." Consultation before bids was shown.

Laurence R. Wilder, former president of New York ship, once handed John P. Frey of the A. F. of L. a correct sealed list of the companies which would get awards for certain ships—10 days before the bids were opened.

"Interloper" Squelched

An "interloper," United Drydock, entered the field in 1933 for the first time since the war. Then the "Big Three" bids dropped a couple millions or more. But they had risen again by the end of the year—by virture of what the committee suspects was an agreement under which United saw the light.

When Wilder sought to open a new shipyard in Florida and was after an RFC loan, C. L. Bardo, then head of New York ship, enlisted Senator Moore of New Jersey and Postmaster-General Farley to ask Roosevelt to prevent the loan. Wilder didn't get the loan.

In wartime, it was charged, New York ship, asked by the government to build additional capacity with government funds and compensation, refused for weeks.

Bethlehem, while its chief stockholder, Charles M. Schwab was director general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, refused to build for prices accepted by other firms.

Huge Profits Bared

It was charged Bethlehem had made $46.59 a ton on government ships, while other companies made but $10. Newport News, according to comittee figures, made 86 per cent profit in 1918 and 72 per cent in 1917.

Shipbuilders were far from alone in that sort of thing. The duPont interests, the committee showed, were asked while we were at war to build a new powder plant. They held off for three months while fighting over the profit margin.

Other testimony said duPone profits on invested capital during the four war years reached 400 per cent. Chargse of "strike" and "holdup" in wartime were also made against steel, copper—whose profits ran from 56 to 800 per cent—and other industries.

New York Ship reported taxes of $2,941,627 for 1918-21. Internal revnue had $14,561,000 coming. Final settlement in 1918 was for $5,705,000.

Play Deep Game

The inital evidence last fall showed, among other things, how:

American munitions makers "greased" South American statesmen who signed contracts, played them off against one another in inspired armament races, maintainted expensive lobbies in foreign capitals, and sometimes stirred up suspicion and strife.

Despite the Versailles treaty, United Aircraft sent millions of dollars' worth of airplane engines to a rearming Germany.

Patents and licenses were freely exchanged between our manufacturers and foreign governments and the War Department helped duPonts arm Japan.

The committee is by no means through. It has more recommendations to make and meanwhile is about to reveal what the Morgans, Guaranty Trust Company, and other financial interests were doing before and

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MILLICENT GRAVES, secretary to GEORGE DRIMGOLD, finds her employer in his office dead. JARVIS HAPP, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty shop where she is transformed into a brunet, then takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. She meets Happ's son, NORMAN; his stepson, ROBERT CAISE; MRS. HAPP; DICK GENTRY, Happ's partner; VERA DUCHENE, Mrs. Happ's maid.

In Happ's home Millicent sees the mysterious "woman in black ermine" whom she believes has some connection with Drimgold's death.

The chauffeur is found dead. Later Happ is kidnaped.

Millicent and Norman learn the car driven by the woman in ermine belongs to PHYLLIS FAULCONER. They go to her apartment. Norman enters first. When he does not return Millicent follows. The place is in wild disorder and Norman is not in sight.

Millicent goes to a nearby garage, asks to see Phyllis Faulconer's car and goes to the second floor. Someone grabs her arm. It is DETECTIVE HUGHES CLANAN. He opens her purse, finds the note written by Bob Caise, and accuses her of being Phyllis Faulconer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

BUCHANAN said, "That clinches it. You're Phyllis Faulconer. That note was written by Bob Caise. Sergeant Mahoney bet me 10 bucks that when we got Phyllis Faulconer I'd find that Bob Caise had tipped her off about the car. That's why he sent me to wait for it. Come on, you're going to headquarters and get booked."

"But you don't understand," she said. "That note wasn't left for me. That was"

"Oh baloney!" he said. "I've heard enough of your alibis. You come with me. You can tell your troubles to Sergeant Mahoney."

"Thank heavens!" she said. "I can at least talk with some one who's got intelligence."

"Go on, smarty, make all your wise cracks," he said, opening the door of the automobile and pulling her by the handcuffed wrists. "You may think I'm dumb but I had sense enough to trap you and trap you right."

She recognized the futility of further argument and braced herself to be led down the stairs. Once more she saw the pitying glance of the uniformed attendant of the garage and now she understood its complete significance. He had known that a police detective was waiting to arrest whoever showed up to take out that Faulconer sedan, and he had known she was walking into a trap when she climed the stairs.

• • •

SHE felt her cheeks burn with humiliation as she was led handcuffed, in charge of the officer, across the lighted lower floor.

"Well," Buchanan said triumphantly, "I got her."

"Do you need those handcuffs?" the garage man asked.

Buchanan flashed him a belligerent glance.

"I'll say I do. She's wanted for murder."

The garage attendant stuck by his guns.

"You're about a 100-pounds heavier than she is," he remarked. "If she hasn't got a gun you should be able to handle her without handcuffs."

"You don't need to tell me how to do my job," Buchanan remarked. "All I want you to do is to show me where the telephone is and then keep quiet."

The attendant jerked his head toward the office. Buchanan took Millicent into the office, hooked his foot around the leg of a chair, jerked it a few inches toward Millicent and said, "Sit down there and rest yourself. Don't try to make a break."

He picked up the telephone, said, "Police headquarters," and then, after a moment said, "Homicide Department . . . is Sergeant Mahoney there? Well, let me talk with Ramsey . . . Hello, Ramsey, this is Buchanan. I got the Faulconer jane . . . Yes, she's sitting right here at the Savoy garage. Where's Mahoney?"

The receiver made a long series of squawking noises, and Buchanan said, "Well, see if you can get Mahoney and tell Johansen to come around here. It's just a couple of blocks . . . Yes, sure, he's off duty, but he mixed into it and he might as well see it through. Tell him it's big stuff and he may get his name in a newspaper. Only shoot him along."

• • •

BUCHANAN hung up the telephone.

"And now," Millicent asked, "do we start for headquarters?"

"Not yet, sister."

He tilted back in the chair, put his feet up on the desk pulled a black cigar from his pocket, clipped off the end, inspected it, wrapped his lips around it, scratched a match on the sole of his shoe and concentrated his attention upon lighting the cigar. When he had it burning to suit him he puffed out clouds of smoke. His manner that of one who is very well pleased with himself.

"Well," Millicent demanded impatiently, "what are we waiting for? I want to talk with someone who has some authority."

"Sister," he told her, "I've got all the authority you need to bother about."

"I mean," she said, "someone who has sense as well as authority."

"I had sense enough to outsmart you," he told her.

She ignored the comment.

After a few moments she demanded again, "Well, what are we waiting for?"

"That," he said, "is one of the things you might like to know, but you're pretty smart and you'll know what I want to tell you and nothing else."

"I demand," she said, "to be taken to headquarters. I happen to know that you've got to take me before a magistrate when you arrest me."

"So," he said, "you've got a criminal record, have you?"

"No, I haven't a criminal record. I've got work to do and I demand an opportunity to vindicate myself."

"Don't worry. You're going to get that, I promise. If you're on the up and up we'll know it in a very few minutes."

"How?"

• • •

"WE'VE got someone coming who can identify the real Phyllis Faulconer. I won't take your word one way or another. I'm betting you're Phyllis Faulconer, but just the same I'm going to give you all the breaks."

"Oh," she said, "if you'd only do that! If you'd only have someone from the apartment house who knows the real Phyllis Faulconer it would save you the humiliation of making a false arrest and save me a lot of time."

"Okay, sister," he agreed good-naturedly, puffing smoke at the ceiling. "I've got a chap by the name of Johansen coming around here. He knows the real Phyllis Faulconer and I know him. He's a square-shooter, but he's hard-boiled and you can't slip anything over on him. Here he comes now."

Millicent heard the pound of heavy steps. She already anticipated the vindication that was to be hers. She turned a smiling face, and then the smile froze on her lips and panic filled her eyes.

"Hello, Johansen," said Buchanan.

The man who pushed his way through the glass paneled doorway nodded a greeting and then shifted his eyes to Millicent.

He was the officer who had knocked on the door of the apartment and complained to Millicent about the excessive noise—the man who had blown the police whistle when she fled from the apartment!

True Repentance Puts Sin to Rout

Miss Lewis Takes Tabernacle Text From Ezekial 18:30

Miss Georgia Lewis preached with great earnestness on the subject of repentance at the Tabernacle Friday night, text being taken from Ezekial 18:30, "Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shal not be your ruin."

"Fear is not repentance," she said. During a storm people becime fearful and pray to God for help. A person does not necessarily turn from their sin because of fear, and, therefore, fear is not repentance.

"Repentance is not remorse. One man in the Bible was so full of remorse that he hanged himself. There are lots of people who feel guilty before God, but not sufficiently so to turn from their sin.

"Conviction for sin is not repentance. Every church goes through this experience of folks who get under deep conviction. Some even hold to their seats and tremble. It seems that they cannot stand it any longer, but for some reason they will not turn from their sins. Unless people are sorry enough to quit their sinning they will never become a Christian.

"Well then, what is repentance? Repentance is the voluntory change in the mind of the sinner when he decides to turn from his wicked ways and come to God. God is trying His best tonight to get people to repent, turn right about face. John the Baptist came, Christ came, the opostles come all preaching repentance. Before you repent you are walking toward hell, but when you repent you turn about and start in the opposite direction, leaving the devil, ungodliness and wickedness behind you. Do you believe that your mind and will hove a part in your serving God? Yes, we can either repent of our sins, or nor repent. But just as sure as we fail to repent we will suffer the judgments of God. The wicked and all nations that forget God are going to be turned into hell. 'The soul that sinneth, it shall die.' The devil may try to decieve you as he did Eve in the garden saying 'Surely thou shalt not die.'

"God says 'Have I any pleasure that the wicked should die,' and 'Why will ye die, Oh house of Israel.' Why, Oh Why? Give God the answer. Why will you die in your sins when the Son of God has given His all, spilt His blood that you might have life. God's mercy is at hand tonight. Why will you be separated from the love and favor of God almighty, the goodness of God, all that is right, all that is best. Why will you die and thwart the very purpose for which God has made your motal soul. Is it any wonder that God is saying 'Turn ye, turn ye, so iniquity shall not be your ruin.' One of these days the tables will be turned, and instead of our trying to decide what we will do with Jesus, ws will be asking 'What will he do with me.' Now is your time, your opportunity to get to God."

Future's Rosy for Her Reign

Probably this wasn't just what the song writers had in mind as "A Garland of Old-Fashioned Roses" a couple of decades ago; but Margaret Walk is a distinctly modern miss. She's glimpsed here in her regal raiment as queen of the annual rose festival at Santa Rosa, Calif.

Poultry Code Draws Laugh From Court

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Supreme court justices joined with spectators in roars of laughter Friday as Attorney Joseph Heller described the "straight killing" provision of the NRA poultry code.

Under it, a customer is not permitted to select chickens he is purchasing, but must take the "run of the coop." Heller said that if half a coop is purchased, "you just break the box in half."

"All the chickens," said Justice Sutherland dryly, "might be in one end."

The court's marshal had to rap for order.

Revocation Fails

LITTLE ROCK—Efforts to revoke a probation order issued in federal court several weeks ago for John K. Gibson, Lawrence county planter accused by Ben Dame as a conspirator in the burning of the Randolph hotel at Pocahontas Sunday night, were made by Randolph county officials Wednesday, United States Attorney Fred A. Lsgrig said Friday.

Mr. Isgrig said that deputy prosecuting attorney George Steimel and deputy sheriff W. J. Russell of Pocahontas called at his office with Ed Trice, state fire marshal, and asked that Gibson's probation under federal court order be terminated. Evidence in the arson case, including testimony of Ben Dame, who has confessed that he agreed to burn the hotel, and has implicated Gibson and H. E. Smith of Walnut Ridge, was placed before Mr. Isgrig, who told them that it was insufficient to prove Gibson's guilt and that uncorroborated evidence given by Dame is of no value because of his criminal record and bod reputation.

Gibson pleaded guilty in federal court in Jonesboro in February to a charge of handling bonds stolen in a mail robbery and was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $5,000, but the prison sentence was later suspended by Federal Judge Martineau and the fine was reduced to $2,500 and made payable in three annual installments.

Harlow, Powell in New Film Sunday

Franchot Tone Also Starred in "Reckless," Here Three Days

The musical treat of 1935 has come to the screen in the musical extravaganza, "Reckless," which opens Sunday at the Saenger.

Of first importance, the picture introduces Jean Harlow and William Powell as co-stars for the first time. The glamorous platinum star is seen as Mona Leslie, a dazzling Broadway dancer who rises to great social and professional heaght, only to be plunged into the depths of scandal and disgrace by the mad act of her millionaire playboy husband.

Powell is seen as Ned Riley, the jevial sports promoter who walks side by side with Mona through her triumphs and tragedies and finally emerges as "best man."

Franchot Tone ably handles the role of Bob Harrison, the millionaire husband and others deserving of honorable mention are May Robson, as Granny; Rosalind Russell, as Jo Mercer; Henry Stephenson, as the older Harrison; Ted Healy and Nat Pandleton as Powell's companions and little Mickey Rooney.

As the musical numbers unfold, we see such ace entertainers as Carl Randall, sensational dancing star who appears as Miss Harlow's dancing partner; Allan Jones, the recent singing star of "Bittersweet"; Nina Mae McKinney, noted colored blues singer who, we understand, raced from London to Hollywood to sing in the "Reckless" theme number; and even bearded Man Mountain Dean, the giant hill-billy wrestler.

"Reckless" is a musical picture well worth seeing.

A new Laurel and Hardy comedy; "Them Thar Hills" and the latest Paramount News complete the program.

Radical Pair Tell of Their Kidnaping

Communist Editor and Lawyer Reported Safe in New Mexico

GALLUP, N. M.—(AP)—An amazing story of kidnaping and beating by hooded gunmen was laid before authorities Friday night by a New York Communist and a Philadelphia lawyer in New Mexico on behalf of 10 Gallup riot murder defendants.

Taken to the isolated Tohatchi Navajo hospital by Indians, Robert Minor, fiery former Daily Worker editor, and David Levinson, the attorney, said hoodlums abducted them in Gallup Thursday night, beat them with blackjacks and dropped them 35 miles out on the desert, their heads encased in sacks.

"We wandered all night on the desert and in the rain today," Minor said, "until we ran into a Navajo family."

The pair was brought to Gallup late Friday.

Sheriff D. W. Roberts questioned Levinson and Minor at length.

"We were kidnaped," Minor said, "by 10 or 15 men masked in green hoods who suddenly seized us Thursday night at 10 o'clock in the heart of Gallup. With us was Mrs. Julia Bartol, wife of Joe Bartol, president of a mine workers local.

"We resisted and were beaten into insensibility with blackjacks. Levinson and I were thrown into automobiles and taken probably 35 miles into the desert and left on the ground with our heads tied up in sacks, weak from loss of blood."

Taken to the hospital by the Navajo family, Levinson telephoned the governor who promised officers would guarantee the safety of the pair in returning to Gallup.

Minor said they were going "to finish our business on behalf of Juan Ochoa, Joe Bartol and others of 10 miners "framed up" on murder charges."

The murder charges resulted from the slaying of Sheriff M.R. Carmichael during rioting over the eviction of a jobless miner at this little coal and Indian trading center April 4. Two of the rioters were killed.

"This is essentially a trade union question," Minor said, "and we already see in New Mexico the beginning of a movement for solid united trades union front. The International Labor Defense's splendid work must be broadened to include in its defense the movement of all trade unions."

Patman Forces to Back Vinson Bill

Harrison Compromise Measure on Bonus Loses Much Ground

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senate administration leaders late Friday hurriedly recessed the session until Monday to prevent adoption of the Vinson cash bonus payment bill in place of the Harrison compromise.

Cash bosus forces apparently were convinced they had the votes to adopt the Vinson bill and were calling for a vote, when Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, moved to recess over the week-end. Administration leaders hoped to reform their lines over Sunday, but they frankly were pessimistic. The surge of strength for the Vinson bill was in the teeth of a threatened presidential veto.

Blevins

At the early Easter morning hour of 8 o'clock, Miss Ruthal M. Brown, of Blevins, Ark., entered Hendrick chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church on the arm of her uncle, R. W. Beene, who gave her in marriage to become the bride of Kenneth O. Kelton, son of Prof. and Mrs. F. C. Kelton of Tucson, Arizona.

Rev. Rector W. Johnson, pastor of the church, read the marriage lines in the presence of relatives and intimate friends of the young couple. At the chapel organ was Walter Danziger, who prior to the ceremony played "Love Here in My Heart," "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The notes of the last song blended into the opening strain of Lohengrin's wedding march which heralded the approach of the wedding party. Ushers were Iran Sorrells and Ello Myers, while the grooms attendant was Chas. Kinter.

Miss Brown chose as her wedding gown a long fitted model of white moire, with which she wore a chase turban fashioned with a small veil. Her bridal bouquet was formed of yellow roses. Miss Ruth Maye who attended the bride was gowned in pink taffeta and carried pink rose buds.

Miss Brown, who has spent the past few years in Tucson, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Brown of Blevins. She has recently returned from avisit with them. She has been affiliated with the Monte Mansfield company of Tucson and has many friends here.

Mr. Kelton is connected with the Fox-West Coast theaters and is a graduate of the University of Arizona where he majored in electrical engineering. He is an alumnae of the chapter of Kappa Sigma fraternity at the university.

The couple will reside in Tucson after a short wedding trip to California.
